OUTDOOR KINDERGARTEN.

Salvation Army Has Plan for Little Folks.

Staff Capt, Dale of the Salvation Army expects to have in operation in a very few days the free outdoor kindergarten which he is establishing on a tract of ground near Liberty park. His idea is to continue the work done by the free kindergarten during the regular achool term. The plan contemplates the training of the children of the poor in a systematic method of primary education, combined with pleasant recreation for the little ones, who will meet in class work every day and have plenty of time for outdoor sports under the supervision of a competent corps of instructors. The playground provided includes a baseball diamond, a bandball court and other spaces for mild athletics. Twice a week the children will be taken for a straw tide through the city and country, and on their return will be treated to a delightful lunch, the necessary articles having been pledged by dairymen, grocers and others.

This is the fourth year of free kindergarten work in the city, with increasing averest and success each year, and it is believed that the summer outdoor feature by the Salvation Army will be highly appreciated.
